PRIMARY ELECTION RESULTS

By Nicholas Hobbs - Valley Forge

After a bright, early Monday morning, the campaign for political offices started to breathe as the Boys' Staters started their bids for greatness.

Each boy decided which office he wanted to pursue on Sunday morning.

At 9 a.m. the frenzy began as the counselors handed out the paper and crayons for the Boys' Staters to draw campaign signs.

The candidates running for office began creating wacky slogans. This flurry of activity was followed by a lot of traveling among the towns and floors by the candidates to let their names be heard.

Below are the candidates that won the primary election for his respective county.

NATIONALISTS

Secretary of State

Daniel Snoozy

By Kris Wilcox - Valley Forge

The Nationalist secretary of state candidate is Daniel Snoozy of Belleau Wood. If elected secretary of state, Daniel feels his most important duty would be ensuring excellent "organization, accuracy, and honesty."

Daniel's experience in this line of responsibility includes attending both national and state leadership conferences and having experience as a citizen in both rural and metro settings.

FEDERALISTS

Secretary of State

Alexander H. Cherubin, II

By Michael Harpster - Alamo

Alexander of Bunker Hill ran for secretary of state because he felt the position "fit his interests." He enjoys when things run smoothly and promises to work his hardest to maintain order within his office. If elected, one thing Andrew hopes to do is help to gain support for the revision of the No Child Left Behind Policy.

I leave you with a quote directly from Alexander himself: "Alexander Cherubin II... vote for me because second's the best."

State Treasurer

Mathew Ramm

By Staff Reports

Mathew of Bataan, arrived to Lincoln on Sunday from Stuart.

If elected state treasurer, Mathew would like to foster discussion on topics such as establishing casinos in Nebraska or increasing the demand of agricultural products through ethanol plants, research and improving international marketing.

"You hook me up, and I hook you up."

State Treasurer

Mark Dunn

By Cobus Block- Manila Bay

What is the current state deficit? Starting out a conversation with this question would likely get you a stunned reaction from the vast majority of Boys' Staters. Not Mark, at least not any more. This year, the Federalist camp has selected Mark from Bataan to deal with these issues.

Hopefully, Mark Dunn will soon be the money man.

State Auditor

Matthew Temme

By Alex Kim - Yorktown & Khoa Chu - Gettysburg

Matthew of Gettysburg believes his most important duty as state auditor would be to scan all financial documents for signs of fraud.

The question he has been asked constantly throughout his campaign is how he would detect and deal with frauds: "I would review their history, especially when dealing with financial transactions and contact the police for any needed assistance."

State Auditor

James Haynes

By Phong Tran - Belleau Wood

After a gruesome primary, Haynes, a native of Belleau Wood, came out on top over the other candidates. During his speech Haynes noted his accomplishments in the accounting field.

Among these are national qualifications in business calculation, banking, and financial system. Haynes promises to "crack down on complete fraud and embezzlement."

Attorney General

Courtney Radke

By Nicholas Hobbs - Valley Forge

Courtney of Alamo likes surprises. And when asked if he was surprised by winning, he said, "...it was a good surprise."

Courtney plans to "talk more about where the money is going, like to education and other government funded programs."

Courtney also said he can't wait until the general election on Tuesday.

Attorney General

Adam Kuntz

By Carl Lund - Manila Bay

Adam Kuntz of Bunker Hill was voted in as the Attorney General candidate for the Federalist party. He is a man who likes to be behind the scenes helping others and who also has experience in the court room gained from mock trial. He stated, "I want to get a foot in the door what it (being attorney general) is like real." In closing, he wants you to remember to vote for Adam Kuntz.
